What problems are you trying to solve?

With the current pandemic situation, many elderly community members are not able buy their basic day-to-day groceries and supplies.

What inspired you to address this problem?

I was inspired by "distance learning" program, where school lessons are "delivered" by the teachers to the students at their houses. I thought of a way in which the elderly could be "delivered" their groceries and other supplies at their houses. I know that many people in my community would like to help these elderly people.

Describe your idea and functionality:

Many elderly are not comfortable with online shopping. If we device an app where an elderly person could submit their grocery list, and other "volunteer users" of the app, closest to their area could be notified, then the process of the "volunteer user" buying groceries for the elderly user and delivering to their house would be made simple.
